BUDDY CHECK - The American Legion was built on the power of personal contact. A century ago, when our organization was established, there was no other good way to grow and fulfill our purposes. Today, in honor of The American Legion’s centennial, we’re asking you to do what our founders did. Make personal contact with members and former members of your posts and districts.

Hats off to the multiple committees, to include, but not limited to the Resolutions and the Constitution & Bylaws Committees, that reviewed 97 resolutions before handing them off to the Department Executive Committee for review/action. CHAIN OF COMMAND – An established chain of command creates efficiency when reporting problems or communicating with workers. For example, when a member communicates a problem to National Headquarters; their Post, District, Division, or Department (State) doesn’t have an opportunity to correct the problem. Headquarters, while familiar with higher-level strategies and planning, isn’t prepared to correct operational issues or the day-to-day activities. It’s more efficient to direct complaints or report problems to the Post or District Commander before escalating the issue to the Department or National Headquarters staff.

1) Post physical address (where the post meets, does not need to be post home).
2) Post Mailing Address.
